PROBLEM STATEMENT

Floating Land

I am surrounded by dovecotes in the east and olive trees in the west.
In the middle, a small village with houses, some standing on rocks in the middle.

OUR SOLUTION

Leo was not a boy anymore, but he didn't feel quite like a grown-up either. He lived in a quiet village, where the stars shone brightly above the rooftops.

One evening, while walking by the river, Leo found an old lantern tangled in the reeds. Its glass was cracked, and its handle rusted, but something about it felt special. He carried it home and polished it until it gleamed.

That night, as Leo held the lantern close, it flickered—then lifted right out of his hands! It floated gently into the air, glowing like a little sun.

The lantern led Leo outside, guiding him past the familiar streets and deep into the forest. Though he was nervous, he followed. The further he walked, the braver he felt.

At the heart of the forest, Leo found a hidden meadow where fireflies danced like tiny stars. The lantern hovered beside him, and Leo finally understood—this was an adventure waiting for him to embrace.

From that night on, whenever Leo doubted himself, he remembered the floating lantern and how it had led him toward something wonderful.

And so, he kept searching for adventure, never afraid to step into the unknown.
